

Karen Kesteloot:

Acrylic and Pastel: The Enemy that Saved Humanity>>Ebola

Karen Kesteloot gets high school students into the best art and design colleges in the world as an experienced art portfolio coach. She is known as the Admissions Insider because 100% of her students have been accepted.

Karen loves to use art to educate society and help bring people together to solve problems. Karen chose the catastrophic outbreak of the Ebola virus to demonstrate how events and peoples can be brought together to solve a serious threat to humanity. Her tile "The Enemy that Saved Humanity" reflects how the earth's peoples ranging in their relative positions in latitude, knowledge and affluence have united in the humanitarian cause of fighting the devastating Ebola virus. Ironically it is this common enemy that has saved the soul of humanity by hastening us to join forces and demolish boundaries that exist between nations and peoples.

Dedicated to helping you achieve your creative goals,
